

Save The Date

Multicultural Indiana: Teaching about Hoosier Diversity

Saturday, March 1, 2008
Indiana State Museum, Indianapolis
9 am - 12 pm

Indiana history has been shaped by the presence and dedication of racially, economically, and culturally diverse groups of men and women. This workshop will introduce educators to the state's diverse history and its impact on Indiana's development and architecture. Representatives from schools that have developed and implemented multicultural curricula will discuss ways to use such information in the classroom.

This workshop is presented by the Division of Historic Preservation and Archaeology, Indiana Historical Bureau and the Indiana State Museum

Registration Deadline: February 15, 2008

Registration Cost: $20.00

For more information contact:

Jeannie Regan-Dinius
Division of Historic Preservation and Archaeology
317/234-1268

Joanna Hahn
Indiana State Museum
317/232-8293

